John dusted shelves and read books and dusted. Not unless SRP he can amuse himself endlessly in such situations.
I listened to Chopin nocturnes on my Sony Walkman.
Not long after midnight, we returned here. John read a book called "Yonder Comes the Train" and as he did he pointed out things about railroads to me.
Very pleasant. We spent about an hour looking at the book and then withdrew to his corner of the music room and to my corner. I was exhausted and fell asleep more or less instantly.
Shown below is a typed copy of the remarks that I wrote on Saturday night at the CPL for delivery during the 11 AM service on Sunday at the BBC.

My name is Robert Powell.

Very briefly, I would like to tell you about a stewardship program that will be implemented here at Berean Baptist in the course of the next three months.
The program is called CommPac and it is a contemporary commitment plan for Christian stewardship.

In May of this year, a development committee, made up of Mildred Chubb, John Moon, Merle Morgan, Eleanor Williams and Rev. Pullis reviewed the program and recommended to the Administrative Board of the church that the CommPac program be adopted. In June of this year, the Administrative Board adopted the program.

CommPac is a method for stewardship education and response. The purpose of the program is, first of all, for the congregation to set goals for itself and to develop methods for implementing those goals. The purpose of the program, secondly, is to obtain, from every member of Berean, a commitment in time and in abilities that will make it possible to implement the goals that the congregation has set for itself. The purpose of the program, thirdly, is to obtain, from every member of Berean, a financial commitment that will make it possible to implement the goals that the congregation has set for itself.

In charge of the CommPac program at Berean is a coordinating committee made up of a director, four coordinators, and the pastor. The Goal Setting Coordinator is Carolyn Thomas. The Materials Coordinator is Susan Smith. The Information Coordinator is also Susan Smith. The position of Financial Resources Coordinator has not yet been filled. I have been asked to serve as the Director of this stewardship program.

You will receive in the mail this week a letter from the Committee. In that letter, the program will be presented in greater detail than I can possibly present it to you in these few minutes. We ask that you read the materials that you receive from the Committee and that you prepare to make a commitment in time, in service and in money to the church. Thank you.
